HISTORY OF SOUTH AUSTRALIAN GUIDING SUMMARY

In 1909, 5 weeks after the Crystal Palace Rally, 5 girls from Nailsworth Public School wrote to Chief Scout wanting to be Girl Scouts but nothing came of it.

The first Guides in South Australia were formed in 1912 following a visit by Sir Robert Baden-Powell.
An invitation came over the telephone to Miss Ellie Wemyss to visit him about founding the Guide Movement, and later, at the interview at Government House he gave Miss Wemyss authority to found the Movement, and to form a Committee to control it.The Guides were known as the 'Baden-Powell Girl Guides' and continued under supervision from Imperial Headquarters until Guiding, as we know it today, officially started in 1921.

The Glen Osmond and Parkside was the first metropolitan company and later in 1912, a second company was organized in the country township of Clare; called the Buckingham Palace Guides.

The Girl Guides Association of Australia was formally registered May 1910.

In 1913 6 Guides were enrolled and the first Guide camp was held on Mrs Wakeham's property at Mount Lofty on 19th January 1914.

In 1914, there were five companies in South Australia. In this year, the first Church Parade took place. 1st Glen Osmond Company camped at Easter in Mrs Kirkham-Evan's beach house. Baden-Powell Girl Guides passed First Aid, and Nursing with the St John's Ambulance Association. Miss Agnes Baden-Powell took an interest in the "ladies who devoted so much time and energy" to forwarding The Girl Guides in South Australia. There was some dissention with the Committee and Lady Symon, State Treasurer, left the Baden Powell Girl Guides. Robert Baden-Powell was unable to solve the issue, and a South Australian Headquarters no longer existed in 1916 and Miss Wemyss financed the purchases from Imperial Headquarters in London.

By 1917 Miss Ellie Wemyss was getting letters from all over South Australia from girls wanting to be Girl Guides. Miss Wemyss acted as the Hononary Secretary (State) for South Australia Baden Powell Guides.

1919-20 The Baden-Powell's congratulatedMiss Wemyss for managing so well during this time and tried to get her Vice Regal assistance. Miss Thea Barker wrote to Agnes Baden-Powell suggesting Beatrice Ford-Smith as a leader in her place at Mt Barker Guides, a group she had been running unofficially since 1916.

In 1921, Lady Hackett was appointed as the first State Commissioner, when Guiding was officially established in South Australia.

The first "School of Instruction" was held in 1921 as well as various training camps. These were followed by a visit in 1923 of an Experienced Trainer from Imperial Headquarters, Miss Margaret Prior.

At the end of 1921, census figures showed a total of 500 members. Ten years later the figures had risen to 8,377.

At this time, the uniform was khaki drill, white silk under blouse, stitched drill hat, brown shoes, stockings and tie. The uniform was later changed in 1926 to navy blue drill (good uniform obtainable at leading stores for 5/- each!) and in 1938 the light blue uniform was adopted. In 1961, the skirt and blouse took its place.

During the war years, the Thrift Campaign, organized by Mrs Lance Lewis raised $72,000. G.I.S. volunteers gave service overseas and the Guide National Emergency Squad was formed.

An interesting highlight in the history of South Australian Guiding and Scouting is that, for many years, the two State Commissioners were Mrs. Herbert Rymill and her son, Mr. Henry Rymill.

The first Act of Loyalty by Scouts and Guides was held in the grounds of Government House in the year 1932 and remained as an annual event, commemorating the Queen's birthday until 2004. Today the Queen's Guide Award, Olave Baden-Powell Award and Leader Awards are presented at a ceremony within Government House by the Patron of Girl Guides SA inc.

The State's annual service – the Crippled Children's Camp, originated in 1942 and was held at Oakbank Racecourse, except for a break during the latter war years. The 1965 camp was the biggest yet, staffed by 65 Guiders and senior Guides. The camp was renamed the Edna Ayres Camp and now is known as Camp Amity.

South Australia's own headquarters was opened in October 1963 by the State Premier. TheTraining Centre, Paxlease, was opened and named by Lady Baden-Powell in 1935, and the campsite, Wongalere, was opened by the State President in September 1964. A further campsite at McLaren Flat became a permanent home away from home for many Guides after its purchase in 1978. The campsite, known as Douglas Scrub Campsite, hosted many Unit, District, Region and State Camps over the years. An Australian Jamboree, SA4U2, was held here in 1996. 1987 saw the construction of GTS Dolphin Water Activities Centre at Snowdens Beach, Port Adelaide.

In 1931 The World Chief Scout, Lord Baden-Powell and World Chief Guide, Lady Baden-Powell visited Adelaide and attended a joint Guide-Scout rally at the Adelaide Oval. Lady Baden-Powell returned in 1935, 1947, 1957 and 1967.

South Australia had four Juliette Low delegates in 1964, and Miss Marilyn Gilbertson represented Australia at a conference on Eastern and Western Cultural Values, held in New Delhi.

The first State magazine was printed in 1922."Adventuring" was established as the State Magazine in 1939, named by Miss Barbara Carozzi, Captain of the Cadet Company and later Camp Adviser. The magazine was later renamed Magpie and is available electronically via email and website access.

1985 was the 75 Birthday of the Girl Guides Association in Australia. The milestone was celebrated with Campfires held across Australia. This year was also the year that Guiding in the Northern Territory was recognised as a separate entity to Girl Guides SA inc.

Collecting corks was a major fundraiser for Units within the State and an environmental initiative to reduce the destruction of cork trees from 1996. With the move to non-cork products for the wine industry this initiative was discontinued in 2012.

Guides and Leaders actively participated in the United Nations Days and National Celebration and Memorial Days. For Harmony Day in 2005 Popeye was wrapped in orange by Colonel Light Gardens Guides.

Lone Guides using the internet were established in 2005.

The World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts initiated three years of celebrations for the Centenary of Guiding from 2010 to 2012. Girl Guides Australia was honored by the Australian Government with 2010 designated as the Year of the Girl Guide. Girl Guides SA Inc celebrated its centenary in 2012 with a Centenary Challenge Badge; a corporate history month function, 'A Promise for Life'; a State Camp, SenSAtional; the Centenary Challenge badge activities; and a large Centenary Campfire at Elder Park.

Over the years the Program for Guides, Training for Leaders, Promise and Law, Award System and uniform have had reviews with changes made to continue to grow the organisation and continue to be relevant to the Guides and Leaders of the day. The latest change was in 1995 with the four Elements of Practical, People, Physical and Self and the seven Fundamentals of Promise and Law; Outdoors; Leadership; Patrol System, Service, World Guiding and Guiding Traditions. The training of Leaders began a new era with the Australian Learning and Development Review in 2012. The Promise and Law review resulted in changes to the Promise and Law in 2012.
